TRAVERSE CITY IN THE CROSSHAIRS

When the 99th National Governors Association Summer Meeting convenes in Traverse City this July will the convergence of state executives, White House officials and national media put northern Michigan in the crosshairs of a terror plot?

Just such a scenario is foreshadowed in Michigan author J. Ryan Fenzel's latest novel.

Descending from Duty (Ironcroft) is a political thriller set against the backdrop of the post-9/11 Great Lakes. The prescient plotline and familiar locales give the story a very personal, if not ominous, touch to Michiganders.

From Mackinac Island to Michigan's West Coast, from decorated WWII submarine USS Silversides to the Great Lakes 9th District Coast Guard Fleet, Descending from Duty unveils not-so-well-known treasures of pure Michigan and layers them in a tale of high-stakes intrigue. Fenzel is taking his homegrown thriller to the region in an ongoing book tour this summer. Call Brian at Ironcroft to schedule an author interview or to acquire further information.
